

FRANKLIN STEIN

Franklin Neuhaus Stein has served the local community as a pro tem judge since 1999.

Franklin was born in San Francisco, California, in 1953. When Franklin was ten, his family moved to Reno, Nevada, where he graduated from Wooster High School in 1971 (picture below with his brother Herman).

In 1975, Franklin and his new wife, Bobbie, moved to Pend Oreille County, Washington, where they built a log cabin in the woods. They raised two boys who now serve in the Air Force.

Franklin obtained his teaching degree from Whitworth College in 1978. He taught 4th grade for six years at Sadie Halstead Elementary in Newport, Washington. Several years later, Frank obtained a Masters Degree in Education (pictured with Bobbie).

Franklin was accepted to Gonzaga School of Law as a Thomas More Scholar where he graduated summa cum laude in 1987.

Franklin practiced law with the Spokane law firm of Evans, Craven & Lackie, P.S., where he specialized in education law, public entity liability and appellate practice.

Franklin returned to Gonzaga School of Law in 1994, this time as an instructor.

Franklin's high school friend, Philip Van de Veer, was appointed to the Pend Oreille County District Court bench. Franklin moved back to Pend Oreille County where, on Halloween, he serves as a judge pro tem (picture: Franklin with son Nathan and Lexi Van de Veer and Broadway, movie and television star, Cheyenne Jackson).
